

EAT AND DRINK

NYC restaurants serving Thanksgiving dinner

By Nicole Levy and Jillian Jorgensen nicole.levy@amny.com October 26, 2017

Let someone else do the cooking for you this Thanksgiving.

Just because you're not eating at home (and cooking a multi-course meal in a tiny kitchen) doesn't mean you can't enjoy a traditional holiday feast: Plenty of New York City restaurants are serving turkey dinners with all the traditional fixings on Nov. 23. If you're looking for vegetarian options or something less conventional, some spots are offering steak, leg of lamb, fish and risottos as entrées. And the best part about going out with your family and friends is that you won't have to do the dishes after dessert.

Here's where to make your reservations before they fill up:

212 Steakhouse

This steakhouse, which prides itself on using Kobe beef, is offering a four-course dinner with -- you guessed it -- Kobe beef ribeye or 3-ounce strip steaks (pictured) as entrée options, in addition to a pan-roasted black sea bass filet, pumpkin risotto and roasted turkey with chestnut stuffing. (Be warned: You'll have to pay $45 extra for the red meat.) Appetizers include crab cake and two types of salad. That's followed by a spinach soup, then the main course, and finally a dessert, either pumpkin or pecan pie. ($75 per person, 316 E. 53rd St., www.212steakhouse.com)

(Credit: 212 Steakhouse)